WOMEN PLAN TO GREET CONGRESS

Congressional Union for Suffrage Is Arranging Big Demonstration.

EXPECT 5,000 VISITORS

Delegation of Vote Seekers from Every State in Union Will Be Here for "The Cause"

The Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage has commenced to make arrangements for the 5,000 suffragists who will come to Washington for the big demonstration before Congress the first week of December. Provision will be made for a delegation from every State in the Union. Reports from field workers are encouraging.

The following delegations are promised: Arizona, 10; California, 100; Colorado, 50; Idaho, 10; Illinois, 500; Kansas, 50; Montana, 50; Nevada, 10; Oregon, 50; Utah, 10; Washington, 10; Wyoming, 10; Arkansas, 10; Iowa, 50; Massachusetts, 100; Michigan, 50; Missouri, 50; Nebraska, 50; New Jersey, 500; New York, 500; North Dakota, 50; Ohio, 100; Pennsylvania, 500; South Dakota, 50; Tennessee, 50; West Virginia, 50; Wisconsin, 50; Alabama, 50; Connecticut, 50; Delaware, 50; Florida, 10; Georgia, 10; Indiana, 100; Kentucky, 50; Louisiana, 50; Maine, 50; Maryland, 500; Minnesota, 100; Mississippi, 50; New Hampshire, 50; New Mexico, 10; North Carolina, 50; Oklahoma, 10; Rhode Island, 50; South Carolina, 50; Texas, 50; Vermont, 50; Virginia, 500.

Suffrage Sentiment Strong.

"It is remarkable how strong the woman suffrage sentiment has become in some sections of the United States within the last three years," said Mrs. William West, wife of Representative Kent, of California, yesterday. "Even the conservative South is making progress in the movement for the enfranchisement of women. Few people realize that in the legislature of eight Southern States this year 400 votes were cast for suffrage to 233 against. The Old Dominion is so thoroughly alive for the Susan B. Anthony amendment to remove from the ballot the qualification of sex that she will send a half thousand delegates to the big December rally. Far-away Louisiana will be represented by half a hundred women. New England and the Eastern border are enthusiastic for votes for women."

To rouse the equal suffrage States to interest in the great gathering at Washington, a big convention of women voters, the first political convention of women ever held in the history of this country, is being organized at the Panama-Pacific Exposition for September 14, 15, 16, and 17. Doris Stevens, working under the direction of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, is now making arrangements for the convention. Mrs. E. St. Clair Thompson is organizing for the Congressional Union in Colorado and Miss Virginia Arnold in Oregon.

Miss Mabel Vernon, who is now in Utah, and plans to visit Idaho, Nevada, Washington, and Arizona before September 14, is the Washington headquarters. "Five hundred delegates to the Women Voters Convention are now certain; and we shall have many more by September."

From the convention at San Francisco to the demonstration in Washington, suffragists will travel by train, boat, automobile, and every other method of rapid transportation. Meetings, petitions and holding meetings on the way. "There will be a suffrage cyclone in Washington when Congress meets next December," says Miss Paul, who believes before to be a good political prophet.

BELGIAN MONKS FEAR HINDOOS ARE DEMONS

Pandemonium Breaks Loose in Monastery When Wounded Soldiers Mistake Inmates for Ghosts.

London, July 24.—An English soldier tells the following story of the Hindoo troops. The scene was in a monastery near the Belgian front. The building was used as a first-aid hospital. A number of slightly wounded Indians were taken to the hospital late at night. After their wounds had been attended, the men were ordered to bed by the surgeon major.

The monks were attending a service in the chapel. They had left their cells open, and the sound of the bells, saw the iron beds, and believing that they were intended for them, lay down and slept. When the service in the chapel came to an end the monks returned to their cells. On seeing the black figures in their beds they gave a start. The noise woke up the Indian soldiers, who took the white-robed monks for ghosts and began to utter a series of curses.

The monks were not less afraid. They did not know who the intruders were, and, filled with terror, escaped along the corridors shouting "Demons! Demons!" Their explanation was forthcoming. The monks were not only satisfied, but delighted, and a quarter of an hour later a ghost, watched at the bed of each "demon."

GERMANS USE PETROL BOMBS.

Men in London Regiment Are Blinded by Explosions.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald. London, July 24.—A private from this city has just written home:

"The Twenty-third London Regiment, after faithfully and steadily doing their duty for about two months, was ordered to charge. They did so coolly and effectively. They succeeded in taking three lines of trenches by brilliant dash, but they were shelled out of two lines by terrible enfilade shelling, which caused more casualties than the charge, many men being blown to pieces."

Under terrible machine gun and artillery fire. In one instance forty-seven men held a trench against overwhelming odds. The German and French soldiers were blinded and roasted about without sight between the lines. The whole was a terrible and unending sight to civilian soldiers, but the boys did fine."

SOLDIERS IN ATHLETIC EVENTS.

German Crown Prince Arranges Festival and Gives Medals.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald. Berlin, July 24.—A few miles behind the firing line in the Argonne forest the German crown prince arranged a sports festival for his troops. A few days ago hundreds of soldiers took part in the athletic contests and the enthusiasm ran high.

The trophies, valuable silver cups, were presented to the winners by the crown prince in person. Between the different events three regimental bands played. The festival wound up with a strenuous football game, which was won by the artillery.

TOLD HOW TO BEHAVE DURING ZEPPELIN RAID

Advice Given to Londoners by Scotland Yard Has Caused Much Amusement.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald.

London, July 24.—Parisians who have had ample warning each time a Zeppelin has crossed the frontier en route for Paris are highly amused at the statement issued some time ago by Scotland Yard telling Londoners how to behave during a Zeppelin bombardment of this city.

First of all we were told that in all probability the first warning we should have of the arrival of our German aerial visitors would be the firing of the anti-aircraft cannon and the explosion of falling German bombs. Our brave constabulary showed that the night was made for sleep.

If, therefore, one of these calm summer nights we are awakened from our slumbers by a bomb being dropped on our heads we shall be justified in saying to ourselves: "There is no doubt the Zeppelins are here." We must say this "otto voce" for to make it known to anybody that Zeppelins have bombarded London ahead of the official announcement of the fact is high treason.

We are furthermore informed by the same kind paternal chief of Scotland Yard that it is advisable to provide yourself with a respirator, but that it is impossible to tell what kind of respirator you should use until you have found out the exact nature of the poisonous gas poured down upon you from the Zeppelin.

If, therefore, you notice a peculiar unpleasant smell in your bedroom which irritates your throat and which is likely to be dangerous, if not fatal, to your life, all you have to do is to take a sample of the atmosphere, keep it analyzed by a chemist and ask him what kind of respirator he would recommend in this particular case. Should you happen to be suffocated before morning you will, of course, be saved considerable trouble.

SOLDIERS LIVING TORCHES.

Flames from Haycock Set Fire to Petrol in Their Pockets.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald.

Paris, July 24.—On the edge of the Forest of Parroy, in Lorraine, midway between the French and German lines, and at a distance of about 400 yards from either, stood the remains of farm buildings, surrounded by walls. Neither side could hold this vantage ground long, for it was impossible to send munitions and supplies to its defenders, who were, moreover, exposed to a storm of shells from the enemy.

The French for a time solved the difficulty by sending a party of dragoons to hold the farm during the night in order to prevent its occupation by the Germans, and withdrawing them at daybreak. The stratagem was successful. Under cover of night the Germans frequently advanced to within forty yards, only to be mowed down. During the day they kept up a hot fire against the farm, but as it was empty, no harm was done. This went on for a week, the French dragoons holding the farm by night and evacuating it by day.

One day as the French were falling back they saw the Saxons advancing in a battalion to attack the farm. In the half-light their figures were just discernible. The French fired on them. Suddenly a sheet of flame shot up. The hayloft, the haystacks, everything began to blaze. The Germans had set them on fire.

Suddenly the French were horrified to see men running to and fro, yelling like madmen and enveloped in flames. They relied on the ground or rushed

Women All Over the Country Joining Navy League Auxiliary

National and State Committees Will Be Formed to Help Build Up the Sentiment in Favor of Adequate Defense for the Country.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald.

Women in all walks of life, from every section of the country, have rallied in amazing numbers to the standard of the women's section of the Navy League, the first women's national defense organization in the United States, and letters of indorsement and approval are constantly being received from prominent women all over the country.

"The idea is a splendid one," said Miss Grace M. Pierce, registrar of the D. A. R. "It is time that the women of this country freed themselves of the stigma of standing for peace at any price, lack of preparedness and national cowardice, which has been attached to them because certain women have been misled by crafty, false, anti-American peace propagandists into throwing in their own lot with them. American women today are, like the women of every other country, the fountain of true patriotism, courage and true nationalism. The spirit of Dolly Madison, Martha Washington, and Nancy Hanks still lives in the land."

"When the test comes American women will tell their husbands and sons to go, serve their countries and come back with their shields or on them, just as bravely and just as cheerful as did the Spartan women years ago. American women should be in the forefront of the new movement toward nationalism and national defense. They have most to gain by the establishment of a navy which shall be able to keep war forever far from our own shores. I am heartily in accord with the sentiment which has inspired the founding of the Navy League Women's Section, and shall do all in my power to aid and assist it."

Through the week the work of organization has gone on apace. Letters have been sent by the women's committee of the organization to several thousand women, an average of more than twenty-five in a state, requesting them to become members of the national committee of the Navy League Women's Section and to assist in organizing State committees in their own commonwealths and in forming local organizations in their own communities. Among the prominent women who already have heartily indorsed the new organization and consented to act on the national committee are Mrs. William Cummings Story, President of the D. A. R.; Mrs. Daisy McLaurin Stevens, president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy; some towards the Germans, others towards the French lines, cracking and exploding as they ran. One of these poor wretches, who managed to reach the trenches, lived a couple of hours and was able to supply the key to the mystery.

German battalion had been ordered forward to take the farm. A score of men, with their incendiary engines, a kind of compressed powder in the shape of pastilles, macaroni and little laths of wood, were to fire the buildings. One of these men allowed the flames from the blazing haycock to reach his clothing and the bag in which he carried the pastilles. In a few seconds the man was a living torch. His comrades, terrified, ran to help him. They too flared up, for they were carrying cans of petrol as well as powder. These were the human oil-of-the-wicks seen dancing in their death dance.

FASHIONS USE UP COTTON. Patriotism of German Women Causes Government Uneasiness.

Berlin, July 24.—The patriotism of the German women has created new difficulties. A few months ago, as a result of the war, a nation-wide movement for emancipation of the French fashion was organized. The fruits of this agitation are so unhappy, however, that the entire press has raised its voice in protest and the government is worried.

The tight French skirts of last year have been replaced by very wide, bell-like garments requiring three times the amount of the material that was used formerly. This new fashion has been adopted by patriotic women everywhere and now threatens to deplete the scant stocks of cotton and wool entirely.

The situation is so serious that the government may see itself compelled to stop this waste of raw materials.
